

Pay your dividends direct to your bank or building society

Save time, have faster access to your funds and avoid the risk of having your dividend cheques delayed (or even lost in the post) by having your dividends paid direct into your bank account.

To help you keep track of dividends and other income received on your accounts (other than ISAs), we'll send you a Composite Tax Certificate in April each year; it's also a useful summary for inclusion on your tax return. Details of each individual receipt are shown on your half-yearly account statements, issued in April and October, and you can also see details online, anytime, via www.share.com.

All you need do is fill in this form and include a bank statement, which is less than 6 months old, shows both your name and address details and relates to the details you provide in Section 2. The statement you provide must be an original and not a photocopy or one printed from the internet. Your original documents, will of course, be returned to you.
